Duchess cuts cost of village-owned housing lots

SUBMITTED BROOKS BULLETIN

The Village of Duchess has come up with a plan for the Housing Accelerator money they received from the federal government to help with the housing crisis while adding residences and residents to the community.

In February the village was granted $527,991 over four years.

Five municipally-owned lots are being sold at a 40 per cent reduction. The lots have servicing to the property line.

Current homeowners who add a secondary suite to their existing residence will qualify for a grant up to $2,500 while a new building with a secondary suite either on the property or within a new home will qualify for a grant up to $5,000.

Owners of modular homes that are moved onto rented lots at the modular home park receive a 50 per cent reduction on municipal taxes for two years.

The village has terms and conditions that must be met in order to qualify.

"With this funding the village has put together some initiatives to attract new residents to our community and to financially support current residents of Duchess," states a press release from the village.

Donations needed as financial trouble plagues animal shelter

SANDRA M STANWAY BROOKS BULLETIN

The Brooks Animal Protection Society (BAPS) is having financial trouble, thanks to the huge influx of cats, many of which are pregnant, and they are reaching out to the community to help.

They are filled to capacity with just over 100 dogs, puppies, cats and kittens with just under $20,000 in their account.

Since the public learned that BAPS is in trouble, Alyshia Nyberg, shelter manager, said there has been a couple of adoptions and some donations.

"We've had some donations come in - food and money and a couple of adoptions have gone out the door," Nyberg said.

"It's slow. People don't want to adopt yet. It's school and vacations but we've had people step up and help us. Absolutely."

Shelter representative Dianne Lau said many of the cats they have taken in are pregnant which has led to a large influx of kittens.

"It has taken a toll on BAPS," she said.

"They require more cat food, kitten formula and food, vaccinations and vet care. It has become a trickle effect as well. When there is a huge amount of cats in one area, we need to create a clean environment to prevent the spread of diseases which means more cleaning supplies and caretakers to clean. This effects payroll, funds toward

"Unfortunately, if we can't get the help we need, we will be unable to keep our doors open..."

cleaning supplies, food for the cats and also on our vet bills as we need to ensure the cats are vaccinated and also spayed or neutered."

On top of those issues, inflation is taking its toll as they have to put out more money for food, cleaning supplies and vet care.

"As a volunteer board we have been actively trying to combat this issue. Our main focus as board members is to create fundraising events to gain funds from our generous community."

On Oct. 5 BAPS will hold a Dog Jog which is expected to be a major fundraiser.

Mayor John Petrie said the city is aware of the situation and they are keeping an eye on it.

"They haven't approached us and I give them kudos for trying to solve the problem," he said

The second quarter financials should be presented to city committee at the September meeting and there may be further discussion about the situation.

Since last fall the organization has hosted many events, however, the average raised is between $300 and $800, with the exception of 50-50 draws and gift basket raffles each which raise about $2,000.

"This only helps with one-third of the cost to run the shelter."

To ensure that the animals are fed and healthy, there is also the day-to-day costs to pay staff.

While the organization does not want to exhaust the public in their generosity, they do need funds and/or other donations to keep the doors open.

They are seeking funds, office supplies and food for all animals.

"Unfortunately, if we can't get the help we need, we will be unable to keep our doors open. We will keep doing our best through this time but we are asking for help," the shelter staff posted on social media.

Donations can be made through e-transfer to info@ bapsociety.com or at the shelter during business hours.

The society has also set up an Amazon wishlist page under BAPS wish list. It includes, not only food but also office supplies.

Canada's federal public service is expanding rapidly at your expense

Across the economy there's massive bureaucratic expansion to fulfil political demands while the private sector, which fulfils consumer demands for goods and services, is crowded out.

MATTHEW LAU OTTAWA CITIZEN

increased bureaucratization socialization of Canada's economy since 2015 is well illustrated by the Treasury Board of Canada secretariat's new statistics on the federal public service. All across the economy there's massive bureaucratic expansion to fulfil political demands while the private sector, which fulfils consumer demands for goods and services, is crowded out and its relative importance reduced.

There are now 39,089 federal employees at Employment and Social Development Canada, up 80 per cent from 2015. Meanwhile, total employment in Canada across all industries is up only 15 per cent. Why do we need 80 per cent more bureaucrats to regulate and centrally plan employment in Canada when total employment is only up 15 per cent?

Next, consider the sector. agriculture From 2015 to 2024, the headcount at the federal department of Agriculture and Agri-Food increased 11 per cent while total employment in agriculture fell 18 per cent. That's 11 per cent more agricultural bureaucrats and central planners while the number of people actually producing agricultural goods is down 18 per cent.

dairy Considering particular, there are now 75 people employed at the Canadian Dairy Commission, up 34 per cent versus 2015. Meanwhile the number of dairy cows in Canada as of 2023 (the latest year of available data) is only up two per cent versus 2015, and the number of farms that ship milk is actually down 20 per cent. So, 34 per cent more dairy bureaucrats versus two per cent more dairy cows and 20 per cent fewer dairy farms.

Similarly, the Canadian Transportation Agency's headcount rocketed to 377 in 2024, up 20 per cent from the prior year and up 56 per cent since 2015. Yet since 2015, total employment in transportation and warehousing in Canada increased by a much more modest 17 per cent.

In 2024, a year with no federal election scheduled, there are 1,250 employees at Elections Canada, nearly double the headcount of 630 in 2015, a year in which there was a federal election. But while the number of Elections Canada employees has nearly doubled, the number of voters in Canada has not. From 2015 to 2024, Canada's population increase is about 14 per cent.

Another example: Fisheries and Oceans Canada now employs 14,716 people, up 49 per cent since 2015, and Natural Resources Canada now employs 5,751 people, up 39 per cent since 2015. Meanwhile the number of Canadians employed in natural resources (more specifically, forestry, fishing, mining, quarrying, and oil and gas) is actually down one per cent since 2015.

As of 2024, the federal department for Women and Gender Equality employs 443 people, up 382 per cent versus 2015. But if the number of women in Canada has gone up 382 per cent in the same time period, this is nowhere reflected in any of the population statistics published by Statistics Canada — a government agency whose own headcount as of 2024 is up 48 per cent since 2015.

The total employment in our federal public administration (and separate agencies) is up 43 per cent (from 257,000 to 368,000) from 2015 to 2024. So these examples are not just cherry-picking.

But perhaps the most depressing statistic from the Treasury Board of Canada secretariat's report is the headcount growth at the Canada Revenue Agency.

There are now 59,155 people employed at the CRA as of 2024, up 48 per cent since 2015 — a stark reminder of this federal government's enthusiasm for raising taxes and expanding government control.

TIME CAPSULI

The Very Precious Life of Elon Musk

Elon Musk is heading for a crash. It's only a matter of time before one or another of his random enthusiasms brings him down. But if I had the power I would guarantee him at least two more years of solvency before he loses control of his companies, his great wealth, and possibly even his freedom.

My apparent sympathy for Musk gets me a lot of flak from my wife, one of my sons, and most of my friends, who cannot wait to see him go under. He is so arrogant, so erratic and so wrong-headed in his politics (he must still be reading Ayn Rand) that his downfall will give great pleasure to millions.

And the downfall is almost certainly coming soon. As the entrepreneur and professor Scott Galloway recently remarked: "No company with over $1bn in revenue has ever lost 60% of its revenues in a 12-month period, in a non-war period... Twitter is literally the worstperforming business in history." (Like many people, he's still reluctant to call it

The whole X debacle demonstrates the rapid decline in Musk's business acumen. He offered far too much to buy Twitter, the delighted owners immediately accepted, Musk tried to back out, the courts forced him to go through with the deal, and he ended up owning a slowly declining business that he then put into a nose-dive.

As any 10-year-old could have told him, if he effectively abandoned serious monitoring and opened Twitter/X to every hate-filled ranter with some lies to peddle, the advertisers who are the real source of his cash flow will take their distance from his site.

But Musk told the advertisers to "go f--- yourself" if they didn't want to advertise on his platform, so almost all his big accounts pulled out. Now, less than a year later, he is suing those same advertisers for not advertising on his platform. Good luck with that one.

In the meantime, Musk seems to be covering X's losses by pulling money out of his most successful business, Tesla. He's so rich that this can go on for a long time (unless Tesla's shareholders revolt), but it's definitely not good

Why is he behaving like this? 'Megalomania' is not a precise term in psychology, but it usually get worse with time and he certainly fits that pattern. Another informal term that probably applies to him is 'on the spectrum'. While that can actually be an asset in some business contexts, it is not playing well for him.

So why should we care what happens to Musk?

The world owes him some gratitude for pioneering electric cars when nobody else was really working at it (and he did it specifically to alleviate the climate crisis), but if Tesla failed now other electric vehicle manufacturers would quickly fill the market gap. However, he still has another job to do, and if he's not available it may not happen at all.

The fifth iteration of his giant 'Starship' heavy lift rocket will fly this month or next, and with every iteration it gets a bit closer to delivering the kind of performance that will transform space flight.

Every flight so far has crashed into the sea, but that's the development method Musk uses: launch it, find out what made it fail, fix it, and launch again. It will probably take about another five flights before he gets it all right, so that's around a year. Then another year of many flawless launches and landings before it is certified for manned flight.

And then Musk ceases to be the indispensable man. Nobody else has had the will, the skill and the money to make this thing happen, but once it is certified anybody can manage the exploitation of the reusable Starship/heavy booster combination. That will open up the entire solar system for human beings.

Reducing the cost of getting a kilogram into orbit by 99%, which is the plausible claim he makes for Starship, is not an improvement. It's a revolution. But if Musk goes bankrupt and SpaceX also gets tied up in the courts for many years as it is increasingly possible to imagine – then the whole thing could go down the drain.

If you don't care about human race getting out into the universe, or at least into our own wider neighbourhood, then go ahead and hate Musk. But if you do care, then acknowledge that Musk needs two more years to make that future possible, and ask whatever gods may be to grant him that time.

The Great Paradox

DEVOTIONAL THOUGHT OF THE WEEK

EID MINISTERIAL ASSOC.

Jon Chalmers (Lead Pastor of Brooks Evangelical Free Church)

paradoxical statement can at first sound contradictory but then be true. We are all quite familiar with statements of paradox. A friend might say to another friend who is desperate to find a romantic relationship, "The best way to meet someone else is to not need to be with someone else." A co-worker may tell an ambitious coworker, "The harder you try to impress people, the less impressed they will be with you." I would assume that everyone reading this article would believe these paradoxical statements to be true.

Why then can't other paradoxes be true too? Jesus spoke what I would call the great paradox. In Luke 9:24-25 Jesus said, "For whoever would save his life will lose it, but whoever loses his life for my sake will save it. 25 For what does it profit a man if he gains the whole world and loses or forfeits himself?" Naturally, we believe we must do all we can to guard our wealth, our comfort, even our identities. Jesus says only those who are willing to lose their lives are going to find it. Now to be clear, Jesus isn't saying be a masochist and lose your life. He is saying, 'Lose your life for my sake.' Simply put, if you want to find life, you need yield every area of your life to Jesus first. C.S. Lewis explained this well. Lewis wrote, "Give up yourself, and you will find your real self. Lose your life and you will save it. Submit to death, the death of your ambitions and favorite wishes every day and the death of your whole body in the end: Submit with every fiber of your being, and you will find eternal life. Keep nothing back. Nothing that you have not given away will be really yours. Nothing in you that has not died will ever be raised from the dead. Look for yourself, and you will find in the long run only hatred, loneliness, despair, rage, ruin, and decay. But look for Christ and you will find Him, and with Him everything else thrown in."

Brooks and area RCMP report

SANDRA M STANWAY
BROOKS BULLETIN

Theft??

On Aug. 18 police received a report of a stolen semi truck taken that had been taken from a locked warehouse.

The truck was found later in a different warehouse within the compound. The investigation is ongoing.

Police deal with intoxicated people

While on patrol on Aug. 17, members of the Brooks detachment saw an intoxicated man stumbling on Sutherland Drive. The man had difficulty speaking and smelled of alcohol. Despite attempts to mediate with the individual, police arrested him. He was released when sober.

On the same day police received a call for assistance to remove an aggressive man from a local bar. Members tried to de-escalate the situation.

The man was escorted outside and police tried to speak with him, however, he was arrested and released when sober.

Tip gets impaired driver off road

On Aug. 18 police received an anonymous complaint about a possible impaired driver who was leaving the Duchess Golf Course.

Officers stopped the vehicle as it was leaving the parking lot and conducted a traffic stop when a roadside screening was attempted.

The driver was arrested for failure to comply with the screening and a roadside sanction was issued. The vehicle was seized for 30 days.

Assault

Police arrested a 41-yearold intoxicated woman who was causing a disturbance in a Brooks home.

On Aug. 17 Brooks RCMP responded to a disturbance in an Uplands area residence and found Sumer Laurette Lalonde destroying the home inside and attacking individuals.

Lalonde displayed aggression towards officers and was arrested for multiple accounts of assault.

She appeared in Brooks court last Wednesday with three charges of assault, one obstruction/resist an officer and one county of mischief to property under $5,000.

She is to return to court coday.

Increase in hit and runs

Brooks RCMP has observed an increase in hit and runs and are reminding drivers that it is their legal obligation to remain at the scene of any collision and exchange information.

Failing to do so is a criminal offense and constitutes leaving the scene of a collision.

"We strongly advise all drivers to exercise caution. If you witness a hit and run incident, we encourage you to promptly report it to the RCMP non-emergency complaint line at 403-362-5535 and provide as much information as possible, including the vehicle's make, model, colour, license plate and time of day and location of the incident.

Pair of collisions on Highway 1

On Aug. 20 Brooks RCMP responded to two collisions that occurred minutes apart in the westbound lane of Hwy. 1 and Range Road 150.

The highway was briefly restricted to one lane while vehicles were towed.

One person was transported to hospital with non-life threatening injuries.

Class 7 driver vs. building

On Aug. 20 police and fire responded to a vehicle collision with the Alberta Supports Centre.

Skid marks from the vehicle were noted leading into the Brooks building.

The facility sustained significant damage.

The driver has been charged with driving with a Class 7 license without supervision.

Theft in progress leads to BAPS donation

On Aug. 20 Brooks RCMP were alerted to a theft in progress west of Highway 36 and they arrived on scene in time to locate the suspects vehicle that was attempting to leave.

During the traffic stop the officers observed the vehicle was filled with copper wire.

The investigation resulted in the individual being found to have been responsible for copper wire theft near Lomond and the suspect was charged with theft.

The owners of the copper declined to reclaim it so police had it recycled and donated the proceeds to the Brooks Animal Protection Society.

Special year for Show and Shine as they celebrate 25 years

SUBMITTED

Preparations are well underway for the 25th anniversary edition of the Brooks Street Rod Association's annual Show and Shine which will be held in downtown Brooks on Sept. 7.

From the first show in 1998 that was held at the old Freson Bros. parking lot on Second Street to this year's show, the Show and Shine has become a tradition for many of the participants and it seems to be attracting new fans every year.

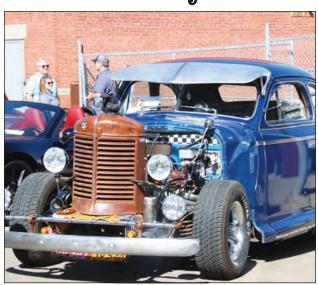

The vehicles and drivers come from all over southern Alberta and represent clubs like the Taber Gear Lords, Cypress Rod and Custom, The Dark Horses, Ponoka Piston Poppers, Hanna Cruisers, Badland Bassheads and the Drumheller Valley Cruisers. Whether you like Chargers, Corvettes, Mustangs, Boxsters, Civics, Square Body and Dentside pickups or ARO M461 military vehicles, there will be something for everyone on display.

The owners who have spent countless hours finding and preparing these vehicles are more than willing to share the stories that each and every one of these cars has to tell

Like the Show and Shine, the BSRA club has also grown.

In addition to hosting the car show the club's 40 members enjoy travelling to other club's shows together or going for fun runs like a steak night at the Patricia Hotel, ice cream runs to Lake Newell and Dinosaur Park or turning out for Tim Hortons Camp Days.

This year the BSRA has also displayed cars at several community events like the HALO fundraiser, Family Fun Day downtown, Bandits tailgate party and the Allied Distributors Fundraiser which raised money for the Brooks Composite High School's skills program. The club has a long history of supporting the automotive shop program at the high by providing them with tools and equipment as well as volunteering time as mentors.

With the support of the City of Brooks and the Downtown Brooks committee the show will be on 1st and 2nd Streets and will feature over 150 cars, trucks and motorcycles representing over 90 years of automotive history. In addition to all the vehicles there will be vendors, food trucks and a DJ to provide some tunes.

BAPS will have their barbecue on hand and the Newell 4-H Club will be helping with garbage patrol and cleanup.

Registration for those wanting to bring a car is from 8-10 a.m. on show day.

The car show runs from 10 -3 and is free for spectators. Everyone is welcome to come to the event, look at the cars, talk to the members and owners and place your vote for the People's Choice Award.

We hope to see you there.

Area trick riders earn fifth Canadian Rodeo title

SANDRA M STANWAY

The Canadian Professional Rodeo Association (CPRA) will present Shelby Pierson and Piper Yule with their fifth Speciality Act, Dress of the Year award during the CPRA Night of Champions Oct. 1 in Edmonton.

"The dynamic duo – from east central Alberta's ranch country - are known across North America as outstanding horsewomen and performers. Both young athletes were thrilled to be recognized once again by their colleagues and peers," states a press release from Rodeo Canada.

'Receiving the Dress Act of the Year and being recognized by the rodeo industry is such an honour,' Yule said.

"I am truly a product of how great our association is and how it guides and sets the highest standard of professionalism. I am thankful and humbled."

Pierson said, "To be voted by our peers as Dress Act of the Year once again is an absolute honour.

'To win this award is something I've dreamed of ever since I started trick riding when I was eightyears-old. There are so many talented acts going in Canada right now so to be voted in as Dress Act of the Year is something I will never take for granted. It makes the many hours spent on the arena and the road worth it and I'm just super grateful to win it with my talented neighbour and friend Piper."

If you're looking for a different place to walk check out the Brooks Aqueduct, a Provincial Historic Resource. The 3.2km concrete flume structure was built between 1912 and 1914 as part of the irrigation system. It sits northeast of Lake Newell and east of the city. It was the largest concrete structure of its kind in the world and is connected to the development of local farm organizations, such as the EID, which owned and operated the Aqueduct after 1935. | SANDRA M STANWAY PHOTO

Federal agency seems omnipotent... infamous for hindering innovation - but it could get worse

Few citizens, even those in the ag economy, would recognize the extent of the power particular federal agency government has on sectors of our industry. That agency has become a target of many ag organizations and commercial sectors of the ag industry. That would be the Pesticide Management Regulatory Agency or PMRA. It was created in 1995 to provide a centralized agency national applications, accept analyze the evidence, and approve/disapprove any new or existing pesticides according to the parameters of its mandate.

That's a somewhat brief overview of the PMRA from a specific aspect. Its complete mandate. rules. regulations, legislation, precedents, subtext, presumptions amendments would countless pages take bureaucratese and legalese. Many citizens, companies, and organizations negatively affected by its many tentacles would suggest that the PMRAs powers have exceeded its original mandate and are out of control. The other side of that perception is that PMRA needs to be more independent, activist, powerful, and transparent that perception tends to be from urban and nonagricultural sectors of Canadian society. I would suggest that the latter sector's perception tends to be based on fear of the unknown, is non-sciencebased, ideologically driven political correctness and just plain ignorance. As one might expect, the fearmongering, donationhungry green lobby exploits that perception at every opportunity.

The mandarins that run the PMRA are politically astute and understand that their decisions need to reflect the perceptions of the majority of the population, no matter misguided and they might be. naïve Add into that their personal biases and agendas, and the result is an attitude that is not favourable towards the commercial agriculture industry. Your humble writer has written about several instances of PMRA flights of fancy obstructionism. However, issues with the PMRA have reached new heights of absurdity.

Some time Federal/Territorial/ Provincial Ministers of Agriculture formed a joint committee whose sole purpose seems to cajole, advise and beg the PMRA bureaucratic lords to take action on several time-sensitive pesticide/antibiotic etc applications. Now, there is something amiss here, especially with the federal government's involvement with the federal ag minister having to act through a joint agency to get the attention of an agency that his government has authority over. To most reasonable folks, it would seem that the federal government in charge should have the legislative ability to force one of their own agencies to carry out their duties in an expedited manner.

But no, it appears the PMRA answers to a higher authority and not their political masters the federal government. One is baffled by this curious arrangement surely the government in power can amend or repeal the legislation that created the PMRA and introduce new legislation that could modernize their mandate, make it more accountable, and if nothing else, force legislation it through make decisions science-based applications, use research and evidence from first world countries like the US, Australia, the EU, and force them to render those decisions within six months of receiving an application. I understand this is common practice modern western countries.

One wonders if a new government with a different ideology would take the initiative to bring some common sense to this agency but, alas, that appears unlikely as the PMRA has survived various federal governments of different political stripes unscathed and become even more overbearing and arrogant. To be fair, I understand attempts have been made to poke at the edges of the PMRA, but even modest are repulsed efforts bureaucratic intransigence aided by the usual coterie of green lobby groups.

It's the green lobby groups that make it particularly difficult Liberal/NDP governments to make changes to PMRA in any way. Those groups tend to pervert the original intent of the PMRA mandate by implying that past approvals of pesticides and herbicides need to be reexamined as there may be new evidence that they are dangerous to human health. Then, by fomenting naïve urban voters with tales of chemical soup in the food they buy - well, you know the result. It makes progressive parties nervous about their voter base, and they telegraph that worry to PMRA management to delay and derail applications.

The real worry is that the PMRA will respond to progressive political government concerns and establish an even more arduous application reexamination process that will make the present situation appear positively cooperative. Thanks climate change zealots in the present government, this could happen sooner than we

Coaching staff expects another strong year for the Roadrunners

SANDRA M STANWAY

Despite some obvious changes with the football program, including the fact there will be no home games this season, Jaret Hofer, the Roadrunners defensive coordinator, is confident it will be a strong team.

"I fully expect we'll be back in the league finals. I feel good. I felt good the last two years but we lost in the league finals but this year this has got to be the year," he said.

The Roadrunners were undefeated in the last two seasons but lost in the finals.

The travel may be a benefit.

Hofer said the good and Hofer said the good and bad thing is that the kids will not be playing in front of friends at home.

"Kids will get distracted. They will want to try to impress people. Sometimes that one hour drive down the highway gives the kids a chance to really focus in mentally. That mental aspect is just as important as the physical aspect," he

He said one thing that has hurt the team mentally in the last two years is going undefeated and then finding they're behind for the first time.

"That's hard for kids to understand."

One of the team's strengths going into the season, he said, will be quarterback Rhett Prins.

The grade 9 student was a back-up QB last year as well as a defensive back.

"He's going to be an outstanding player. I expect Rhett to be a real leader on the team and the best quarterback in the league."

The first team game will be in Medicine Hat on Sept. 5 against the Med Hat Colts.

Roadrunners, Buffalos will play all games out of town

SANDRA M STANWAY

Football practice is well underway on the junior high school field for bantam and high school players but all games will be out of town.

The Brooks Roadrunners held practice on their soon-to-be dismantled field behind the junior high on Thursday.

The games are out of town to allow construction of the new school on the football field, however, construction isn't set to begin until the end of November.

Jaret Hofer, junior high school principal and defensive coordinator for the Roadrunners, said when Grasslands found out the construction date, they began to fill in the drill holes that were made in the field, filled them in and began to water.

He said that has allowed the teams to practice on their own field with the possibility of hosting exhibition games.

The Roadrunners first game is on Sept. 5 against the Medicine Hat Colts in Medicine Hat at 5 p.m.

The Buffalos will play an exhibition game on Aug. 29 at 5 p.m. in Medicine Hat against the McCoy Colts.

Their season opener is Sept. 5 against Willow Creek in Claresholm at 7 nm Claresholm at 7 p.m.

The new school will likely open the doors in the fall of 2026 and a football field possibly by 2027 or 2028.

Schedules for the Badgers, pee wee and atom teams were not available, however, the teams tend to hold practices two or three times a week beginning Aug.

Peewees tend to play one league game per week while the Atoms only play exhibition matches throughout the season.

Games may begin at the start of the school year.

During Roadrunners football practice players such as Kingston Smith-Hoffman learn from coach Brent Prediger some of the fundamentals of the game including the three-point stance.

Duchess Dispatch

DUCHESS - The buzz has begun for the start of another school year. Parents can be seen shopping for clothes, shoes, notebooks, etc. The other thing people are talking about is the governments decision to prohibit cell phones in class throughout the province. This is in effect as of September 3rd, while school divisions work on the finer details of policies regarding this development. These policies will be in place by Ĵanuary 2025, I believe. So parents, please reinforce to your kids that no cell phones will be allowed when they return on September 3rd.

We attended the Metallica rock concert in Edmonton this past weekend and really enjoyed it and the Commonwealth Stadium was a great venue for a concert. Stage show and acoustics were equally good!

I also attended "Indian Relay Races" the in Medicine Hat. The excitement of fast horses, athletic ability and skilled riding as well as the dancers and drums, made for an entertaining evening. I would recommend that you attend these races whenever the opportunity comes around again.

The Duchess 50 plus club will be having our first dinner after the summer break. Mark September 5th on your calendar for lunch at 12:00 pm. We will be having roast beef, mashed potatoes and gravy, salad and catered by the Duchess Rec Center. Dessert will be two bite brownies and ice cream. See you then.

BCHL to change name, says Bandits president

SANDRA M STANWAY
BROOKS BULLETIN

The British Columbia Junior Hockey Association (BCHL) is expected to change their name to better reflect their hockey team membership.

"It won't be called the BCHL, I don't believe, for much longer," Bandits president Paul Seaton told the approximately 15 attendees at last week's annual general meeting.

In January 2024, a leak from the BCHL jolted the junior hockey world when it was revealed that five Alberta Junior Hockey League teams - Brooks Bandits, Blackfalds Bulldogs, Okotoks Oilers, Sherwood Park Crusaders and Spruce Grove Saints - deserted their provincial league for the BCHL. The move was not to be announced until later in the season.

Seaton noted that the "leak with the BCHL overrode a multitude of non-disclosure agreements creating temporary chaos and uncertainty within our and four other Alberta communities."

He said there were a small number of Bandits members who were subject to the non-disclosure document but once it was public board members were notified of the pros and cons of the proposal.

"All unanimously agreed to the change," he said.

"Our board does not go back to the community to make decisions."

The decision did meet with some resentment but most people were positive.

The decision to change leagues ranged from dwindling support due to lack of excitement, foregone conclusion games, bitterness, financials and a league strategic plan.

"Some of us at the last nationals were subjected to bitterness being told that we didn't belong there; to leave with the Cup and let them have a decent competition," he said.

Seaton said the organization was spiralling downward in its finances to the point that the future was insecure so the conclusion was that joining a superior league had to be the strategy.

The introduction of the Alberta teams halfway through the 2023-24 season resulted in an Alberta division. It wasn't until the Rocky Mountain Challenge that a B.C. team made its way to Alberta ice. The Bandits swept the best-of-three series defeating the number one BCHL Surrey Eagles.

This year's schedule looks much different than last year.

Not only has the BCHL revamped its league with new divisions - the Coastal West Division will feature Alberni Valley, Cowichan Valley, Nanaimo, Powell River and Victoria. The Coastal East Division includes Chilliwack, Coquitlam, Langley, Surrey and Prince George. The Interior West will be comprised of Penticton, Salmon Arm, Trail, Vernon and West Kelowna and the Interior East Division will feature Cranbrook, and the five Alberta teams - but there will be travel to B.C. and B.C. teams in Alberta.

The Bandits will host teams in their division and will travel to BC, including for two games in September, four games in October, one in November, two in December, two in January, three in February and four in March.

Bandits exhibition games begin on Sept. 6 in Sherwood Park and the first home exhibition match will be on Sept. 7 against Spruce Grove.

Highlighting the first month of the regular season, the Bandits first regular game is in Okotoks on Sept. 20, with Okotoks travelling to Brooks on Sept. 21 for the home opener. On Sept. 27 the Penticton Vees will travel to Brooks and on Sept. 29 Trail will make the trek.

Seaton hopes the change will win back team support.

"We hope to win back those spectators we lost. It is also imperative that we further increase attendance in order to survive."

The Bandits enter their 25th year with optimism

SANDRA M STANWAY BROOKS BULLETIN

There was a lot of excitement mid-year when the Brooks Bandits left the Alberta Junior Hockey League to take up residence in the British Columbia Hockey League, however, there appears to be a lot more optimism as they move into their 25th season.

In January junior hockey learned through a leaked announcement that five teams were leaving the Alberta league and while some people continue to question that decision the board seems positive.

"There were changes to which league we played in this year but there was no change in the support we received from fans," Nathan Crosby, the Bandits' marketing and community relations representative, told a small group of the public at last week's annual general meeting.

general meeting.

"As we look ahead to our first full season in the BCHL, I'm excited to continue building our strong relationship with our supporters whether they're returning or new and I'm confident the 25th season of Brooks Bandits hockey will be a memorable one"

Even the team's financial report appeared to be more positive.

"We've had an eventful year," echoed April Fleury, who presented the year's financial statement.

The year started with a balanced schedule which increased expenses, then moved to a condensed schedule that saw the five AJHL teams which moved to BCHL face each other and then to an altered playoff.

"We had to adapt many times. We started the season early and finished the season late."

The changes did result in an increase in revenue to $1,687,207 from the 2022-23 amount of $1,514,545 while the expenses increased from $1,471,716 to last season's amount of $1,658,917.

"The staff and directors have worked diligently to increase the revenue and limit spending," she said.

The team raised funds by assisting with community events including Smoker Wars and the Brett Kissel show.

The team made a change in their investment strategy by moving money more frequently in smaller amounts to leverage higher investment rates which has resulted in the interest

The team paid its COVID loan and because it was paid on time they also had a $20,000 loan forgiveness and there was an increase in ticket sales which also helped with the bottom line.

Looking at the balance sheet, Fleury said the team is in a better position.

The team has $1,188,453 in net assets which is an increase from $864,926 last year.

The change in league and the extension of the season created a conflict with the city's approval to rent the ice for a bullriding event.

While the city was able to accommodate both events which included ensuring the ice pad, boards and glass were dirt free prior to restarting the ice plant, they did charge the Bandits $10,280 to restart the plant, supplies for ice making, ice installation, ice removal and additional electrical costs because the ice plant would not have had to be restarted in a normal season.

Team president Paul Seaton was on the Aug. 27 council committee agenda to discuss the invoice.

summer has sped by just too quickly, we started out the summer on the run and haven't stopped yet. We prepared and went to the Calgary Stampede, we especially wanted it to go smoothly this year as we have decided that this will be our last year that we will be there as Wheelwrights, after 15 years we have decided we are getting to old to deal with all that it involves. It is bittersweet as we have met so many incredible people, and taught and learned so much about the art of making a wheel.

We also spent an extra weekend at Pioneer Acres this year for the big truck show, we had the shop there open and did some wheelwright things, we talked to quite a few people and sung the praises of the big show which we also attended.

Then we attended our AGM for the Wheelwright Association. This year it was in Pinedale, Wyoming at the Museum of The Mountain Man, if you ever get a chance to go there it comes highly recommended by John and me.

This past weekend we went to Calgary to pick up an old wheel and stopped at Alberta carriage to attend an old fashioned thrashing an celebrate summer with volunteer friends.

Out here we are back to school next week, that summer went just too fast.

Next weekend we are heading north to Girouxville for the internment of Johns

Court fines woman who had four types of drugs in system

SANDRA M STANWAY BROOKS BULLETIN

Just prior to her sentence, a 24-year-old woman told the court that she is six months clean and will never appear before a judge again.

At 2:30 p.m. in January 2023, Chelsea Marie Treen and a passenger were found inside a vehicle that was parked sideways obstructing traffic. The court was told that the pair appeared to be unconscious and the driver was slumped over the wheel.

Inside the vehicle police saw tinfoil and a crack pipe and empty Baggies with white powder residue inside the driver's door.

The driver slowly woke up and the pair were transported to hospital.

The blood was analyzed and it came back with a report that it contained four types of drugs including meth and fentanyl.

Her lawyer said that Treen remembers very little of the event, however, she told the court, "I'm grateful to get the least penalty possible. I'm sober six months and I don't plan on seeing you again."

Treen pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was given a $1,000 fine and a 12-month driving prohibition.

ZUKOWSKI - Pat Zukowski February 12, 1963 - August 4, It is with tremendous sadness that we announce the passing of this awesome fisherman. was a warrior, battling and he Cholangiocarcinoma, quadrupled the life expectancy that the doctors had predicted. fought with strength, stubbornness, gratitude, hopefulness, and of course, his incomparable sense of humour. Even in his final weeks, he was building meaningful connections with the hospital staff and was entertaining everyone with his quick wit. Pat was born to John and Ann Zukowski, and the family lived in Lodgepole where John and Ann started JoAnn Trucking. The family relocated to Brooks when Pat was about 6, and his parents started Ideal Oilfield Construction and later set up DaPaJo Construction for the three boys, Dave, Pat and John. When their dad died tragically in an oilfield accident, Dave and Pat took the reins of DaPaJo and built a 45-year-old business and legacy of which Pat was extremely proud. DaPaJo was built on hard work, as well as the old school values of loyalty and integrity. Pat and Melanie Reed-Zukowski married in 1992 and they built a wonderful life together. They worked hard and played hard, traveling the world and collecting friends and "family" wherever they went. When Pat got sick in the fall of 2021, they became a tight-knit team that rose to the challenge of battling this rare form of cancer. Their chocolate lab, Lola, was an amazing companion, snuggling with Pat on his tougher days. Pat loved his brothers, Dave and John, and he did his best to impart his fishing expertise to them, but alas, they were never able to out-fish this founding member of Team Awesome. Pat also had a wealth of friends who supported him these past years, and the old saying, "He never met a stranger" described him perfectly. Pat loved people, and he loved helping people just as much. He joined the Brooks Kinsmen Club in 1993 and spent the better part of 3 decades serving the community through that club. In his early years, he wanted his Kinsmen legacy to be replacing the decades old stands at the rodeo grounds, so when you look at the outdoor arena at the new rodeo grounds, all of the metalwork is due to Pat and DaPaJo. He would run security for the rodeo dances and he loved pushing stock at the Brooks Rodeo. He was one of two Kinsmen who instigated the Brooks Christmas Parade. And of course, he thrived on the connections he made through the Kinsmen club. He volunteered with Ducks Unlimited and for pretty much anyone who asked for a helping hand. No one will ever know the full extent of what Pat did to help others as he did not seek accolades but found joy in lending a helping hand. A Celebration of Life for Pat will be held at 2:00 pm on Sunday, September 8th, 2024, at the Silver Sage Community Corral in Brooks, Alberta. Please feel free to dress colourfully, casually and know that you might get a little dirt on your shoes. In memory of Pat, if desired, memorial tributes may be made directly to the charity of your choice, or to the Reed Family Library at the Camrose Association for Community Living (cafcl.ca), 4604 57th Street, Camrose, Alberta T4V 2E7, the Brooks & District Health Foundation, Bag 300, Brooks, Alberta T1R 1B3, or the Cholangiocarcinoma Foundation (cholangiocarcinoma.org), 5526

Sumerian tablet

Ancient history

The ancient Sumerians are thought to have invented the first written language 5,000 years ago. Using symbols drawn into clay tablets, they developed a wedgeshaped form of writing called cuneiform. These clay tablets were not books as we know them today, but they served a similar purpose — to record information.

The ancient Egyptians were probably the first to write books. They used a picture alphabet called hieroglyphics, and their books were written on papyrus, a form of paper made from the papyrus plant. The word paper is derived from the word "papyrus."

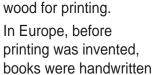

Wax tablet

Egyptian papyrus

The ancient Romans adopted the use of Egyptian scrolls; they also used Greek tablets of wax.

Around the 2nd or 3rd century, the Romans began to create the first books. A codex was an ancient type of book in which sheets of papyrus, parchment or paper were folded in half and sewn together at the fold. Before the Chinese invented paper, they made books by binding strips of wood or bamboo together. The Chinese were making paper as early as 200 B.C. Not long after that, they began to use carved blocks of

Chinese bamboo book

by a scribe, someone trained (usually by a religious order) to read and write. An artist called an illuminator would decorate the pages with beautiful borders and pictures. It could take years to make one book. This made books quite rare and valuable.

MAKING

ost books today are mass-produced, but making books the old-fashioned way (by hand) is not a lost art. There are many kinds of books to make and even more ways to make them. Handmade books are often treasured as an art form. While it is great fun to read a book, it is just as fun to make, write and illustrate one.

Make it yourself: Side binding

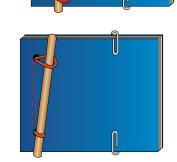

Follow the directions below to make your own book.

Supplies needed: several sheets of 8 1/2-by-11-inch paper, scissors, 1 sheet of construction paper (or thick handmade paper), paper punch, paper clips, a stick, a rubber band.

Step one: Cut the sheets paper in half and then in half again. Cut 2 sheets of heavier paper to the same size (4 1/4 by 5 1/2 inches). Place the paper between the heavier cover paper. To make sure the pages are tidy and even, paper clip them together.

Step two: Use the paper punch to make two holes on each of the books. Punch the holes about 1 inch from the side and 1 inch from the top and bottom.

Step three: Take a rubber band and pull it through one hole. Take a stick and put it through the loop of the rubber band. Pull the band tight, bring it up through the other hole and slip it over the end of the stick. Remove paper clips when finished.

Things to do: Your book can be used for a variety of purposes. You can use it as a personal diary, a journal for creative writing or a sketchbook for drawing. It could also be used for school projects or as a scrapbook to hold memories and photos.

The modern world

Today, most modern printing presses use a process called lithography. Until the relatively recent invention of electronic books (e-books), almost all books were printed and bound mechanically with machine-made paper. Because of the popularity of electronic readers, book publishing is undergoing rapid change.

Many books are available as digital editions and pass quickly from prepress stage directly to digital form, saving time, resources and manufacturing costs.

"Sheep shearing" from the illuminated manuscript Luttrell Psalter, c.1340. In early medieval times, monks were the sole makers of illuminated manuscripts.

Block printing

Around 751 A.D. the Chinese invented a printing method called block printing. Each page was carved out of blocks of wood. The words and images stood out in relief. (Rubber stamps are a form of block printing.) Block printing arrived in Europe in the late 14th century and was used to make books, playing cards and religious pictures. Block printing on fabric is still popular in India.

The Chinese invented movable type using clay around A.D. 1000. In the 1300s, the Koreans invented movable metal type. In Europe, during the mid-1400s, a German named Johannes Gutenberg invented a press that was operated by hand and used metal type. The idea spread rapidly, and for the next 300 years the mechanical printing press underwent few changes.

The old saying of "mind your p's and q's" is from the days of metal type, when the p and the q could be easily confused by a typesetter.

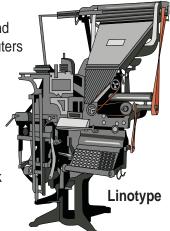

Metal type

Progress

In the 1980s,

Monotype and linotype presses were introduced in the late 19th century. They could set more than 6,000 letters per hour and an entire line of type at once.

laser printers and personal computers evolved into desktop publishing, which allows a person to write, design, typeset and print a book or newspaper without leaving their desk.
