Work on the path to Kinbrook Island Provincial Park should be finished by the end of the month, although it had been thought it would be much earlier.

In July the county's director of municipal services Mark Harbicht told council the last leg of the path would be completed early.

"They're just getting started. They've been fencing for about a week now and getting started with pathway work next week," he said.

"Hoping to be done this year," he said.

The second leg of the 2.5 metre wide (8 feet) path is being fenced with barbed wire. Both sides of the path currently have barbed wire but it's unknown if both sides will remain in place.

The path from Township Road 182 to Bantry Bay which is just under five kilometers (2.6 miles). The Eastern Irrigation District has been installing new barbed wire fence along the future path. As well, the path to Lake Newell Resort is expected to begin in 2025. "We have one landowner to secure. Obviously bumping that to 2025 for construction. Hopefully things work out," he said.

Administration will review the cost of the path estimate to ensure they are working within the original local improvement that was advertised.

During the county's municipal planning meeting, council approved an application from the Eastern Irrigation District to subdivide a 26.58 acre lot to allow for stormwater management as well as the Lake Newell Resort Path.

The EID will not have to pay the required municipal reserve until the future.

In the past the county allowed for a caveat on a municipal reserve to defer payment but the policy was updated and it states that the 10 per cent fund on the value of the acres should be requested money in place of land.

"The difference with this one is that it is a lot larger than any other subdivision that we've had in the past few years," said Maria Jackson, the county's planning and development supervisor.

"That's maybe where this consideration could come into effect."

By taking the money the process is done.

"However, if there is a development later, and the size of this parcel - it's not off the table - as land value increases there's the opportunity to collect more money in the future," she said.

"If the land value doubles in 10 or 20 years when it's developed it could be a benefit to the county."

Jackson said the water for the pond will come from Lake Newell Resort and onto EID property.

The path is expected to be developed north and west of the pond.

"It's hitting two birds with one stone. The county can retain management of the stormwater pond and that path can go through."

County staff will grade an area of road where a private landowner applied their own dust abatement.

"We found some privately placed dust abatement that was not authorized by my office or anybody else in the county on county roads," Mark Harbicht, the county's He said the exact substance has not been identified.

"We know who the product is owned by and who applied it. We are going to be grading that product up."

He said while there is the Traffic Safety Act the county on county roads."

Harbicht said the county provides a product for residents at a subsidized rate.

"We strongly encourage people to use the program offered by the county," he said.

Fencing is being installed along the final 4.3km stretch of the path to Kinbrook Island Provincial Park from Township 18-2 to Bantry Bay. | SANDRA M STANWAY PHOTO

COMMENT Progressives want to control our lives, and Canadians have had it

Today, the culture wars are between those who want to restrict liberties and those who want to be left alone

CARSON JEREMA NATIONAL POST

After a decade or so, progressives are on the defensive in Canada and elsewhere because regular people, as in those who are not activist weirdos, are tired of the agenda to control every aspect of our lives. Point this out to a progressive, and they will deny that anyone's life is being interfered with and claim only some far-right monster would think otherwise. They can't believe there are people out there who share a different view. They don't understand how this could be.

But progressive governments are trying to control our lives in ways big and small, and in ways that range from subtle to a punch in the face.

Canada, the federal In government's environmental policies are the most obvious example of this interference. The Liberals have banned plastic straws and plastic bags; even compostable bags are banned in grocery stores because they resemble plastic. Such bans are pointless irritants that make shopping more expensive, and life slightly less enjoyable as paper straws dissolve in one's drink. People might dismiss these concerns as simply minor inconveniences, but this is how most people experience government policy, by being forced to replace their bag of plastic bags that they were already reusing, with more expensive, less useful options.

Next up, the Liberals are exploring options to bring in environmental regulations for clothing. The cost of clothes has actually gone down in recent years, so leave it to Ottawa to look for ways to bring the cost back up and to limit options.

There is also the plan to essentially force Canadians to purchase electric vehicles, that nobody would otherwise want, through government mandates to phase out the sale of gas-powered cars and trucks.

On a larger scale, the government is attempting to restrict the kind of work people do, specifically work in the oil and gas industry, through steep emissions targets, which will close off lucrative job opportunities in western oilfields. It will also limit the kinds of fuels people will be able to use to heat their homes.

There are also policies that the Canadian government hasn't implemented, but which green activists have endorsed, such as the banning of gas stoves and ludicrous suggestion from the some academics that "climate lockdowns" be implemented to help cut emissions. It is possible to be supportive of all these policies, despite their paternalistic and job-killing nature, but pretending that no one is trying to, or that no one wants to, interfere with our liberty is not a credible position to take.

governments are invading private spaces and limiting personal liberties.

The proposed Online Harms Act would allow anyone to make a human rights complaints about "hate speech," or, practically, any speech they find offensive. Supporters may try to say that only the most egregious forms of expression would be targeted, but the fact is truth is no defence in this legislation and the definition of hate speech is highly subjective. What's more, human rights law is less rigorous than criminal law for determining "guilt."

I guess we should be thankful the government didn't do what it initially wanted by banning "misinformation," which has quickly come to mean anything the Liberals disagree with. Even so, the political nature and the speech-chilling potential of the Online Harms Act are clearly evident.

And, there's more.

The federal government's national daycare plan is currently making it difficult for private daycare owners to operate, thereby limiting not only business opportunities and jobs, but the options parents have.

The same is true for health care, where even the slightest hint of privatization is met with progressive rebuke, even when it means limiting choices that would save someone's life.

Finally, at the provincial level, schools have or once had policies in place to withhold health information from parents, specifically when children may be suffering from gender dysphoria. Mandates from the Alberta and New Brunswick governments to require parental notification of, or consent for, changes to a child's name or pronouns have been met with progressive face melting. Activists think such information should be withheld absent any evidence of abuse.

Despite what the preening, raging, social media mobs say, parents have the right to raise their children free of state interference. Teachers and administrators do not have the right to withhold health information.

Of course, children are not the property of parents, but we don't grant autonomy to children, especially younger children. The people best placed to make decisions for minors are their parents, and unless there are signs of abuse, teachers and school administrators should not be assuming that role. It is kind of bewildering that this even needs to be said. A generation ago, the culture wars centred around a handful of issues that were met with resistance from mostly religious advocates, specifically abortion and gay rights. Today, the culture wars are pitted between those who want to impose ever more restrictions on individuals and those who are tired of it.

The Underlying Struggle

When you find yourself shouting at the television screen, you know it's time to take a break. I reached that point last week, watching Kamala Harris's acceptance speech at the Democratic National Convention, and what I yelled at the screen was "the enemy is us!"

She had got to the foreign policy sound-bite and was talking about the "enduring struggle between democracy and tyranny" and Trump's desire to cosy up to "tyrants and dictators". That's when I lost it.

I'm not denying that such a struggle exists, but we're looking at it through the wrong lens. The democracies are generally (though not always) less wicked than the tyrannies, but the real struggle is far older and much deeper than most people realise. Human beings are primates, and our original social structure was almost certainly like that of our close evolutionary relatives like chimpanzees. Our ancestors would have lived in small groups of thirty to a hundred individuals, each ruled over by a violent, despotic 'monkey-king'.

There would have been a constant struggle between the adult males to seize the spot, complete with alliances and betrayals, but nothing ever really changed. "Meet the new boss. Same as the old boss", as Pete Townshend once put it. To see this in action, watch a brilliant Netflix mini-series called 'Chimp Empire'. But our distant ancestors broke that ancient pattern. They were more intelligent than other primates, and they could see that the perpetual struggle for power wasn't worth it. Any individual's chance of winning the top job was very small, and the fate of the rest was to be bullied and beaten all their lives.

They also had language, probably for at least the last 50,000 years and maybe much longer. So they could imagine a better kind of future in detail, and they could plot and make alliances to create that future. At some point in our very distant past, there was a revolution.

Maybe it happened spontaneously in a thousand different bands, or maybe it only happened once and then the example spread like wildfire, but most of the adult males banded together, overthrew the reigning boss - and adopted a new rule, rigorously enforced, of absolute equality.

How do we know this? Because that was the rule in every single hunter-gatherer group that the anthropologists encountered in the middle decades of the last century, when the first generation of anthropologists studied the social structure of the last generation of hunter-gatherers who had had no contact with mass societies.

They were so strenuously egalitarian that they would "cut down the tall poppies": men giving themselves airs or claiming privileges would be first mocked, then ostracised if necessary, and in extreme cases driven out of the band or killed.

There were charismatic individuals who could persuade others to their point of view, and great warriors who would be given temporary leadership roles in the chronic inter-band warfare, but the worst social crime was for one man to give an order to another.

mass societies that eventually destroyed them. And it all lasted long enough – at least tens of thousands of years – to make equality and freedom default human values.

So what went wrong? Mass civilisation happened.

Societies of millions of people were far richer and more powerful than tiny hunter-gatherer bands, but it was impossible to run them by discussion and debate among equals. The new, cropgrowing mass societies had to be tyrannies, and they were so numerous and powerful that they drove the old, egalitarian values underground.

However, those values never actually died. Rebellions were constant, but always crushed. Ten thousand years of tyranny and oppression - and then early mass communications (just literacy, books and pamphlets) finally made it possible for large numbers of people to make decisions together as equals.

That opened the door to the American Revolution in 1776, the French Revolution in 1789, and two more centuries of struggle to recover our old egalitarian values and rights. About a third of the world's people now live in countries where everybody really has equal rights before the law, and the other two-thirds live in countries that pretend to be like that. So why did I yell "The enemy is us"? It comes from a long-dead American newspaper comic-strip called 'Pogo', in which the main character, a humble opossum, deliberately misquoted an American military hero of the War of 1812 who once famously declared his victory by saying: "We have met the enemy and they are ours." No, said Pogo. It should be "We have met the enemy, and he is us." It is two contradictory human heritages at war, and the right one is winning. Understand the context, and the world will start to make sense.

Of course, it isn't just environmental policy where

Women's positions varied from one hunter-gatherer culture to another but were certainly better than in the County will help Duchess minor ball with shale costs

SANDRA M STANWAY BROOKS BULLETIN

County council has agreed to provide $6,100 from municipal reserves to allow the Duchess Minor Ball Association to install shale in a pair of ball diamonds.

The county had previously used funds from the municipal reserve account to replace the shale in Rolling Hills.

"I think the benefit on this one is the volunteers are going to be doing the lion's share of the work," said CAO Matt Fenske.

Although some members of council would have liked to have had representatives of the committee present the request, councillor Neil Johnson didn't believe that was necessary.

"I think it's a pretty reasonable request. I'm totally in favour of $6,100," he said.

Councillor Holly Johnson said she voted against the motion because she believed

Status Update

DEVOTIONAL THOUGHT OF THE WEEK

EID MINISTERIAL ASSOC.

David Bradford Brooks Alliance Church

Status update – a phrase that has come to the fore in the past few decades with the advent of Facebook. What's on vour mind? How are you?

Proverbs 27:19 tells us this truth: "As water reflects a face, so a man's heart reflects the man." If you want to know how you are doing - your status - God says check your heart. Don't look at your bank account, your social media influence, your house, your possessions, your list of friends (virtual or otherwise), your marks in school, or, or, or....God tells us to look at how our heart is.

But how do we really know how our heart is doing? We read this truth just two verses earlier in Proverbs 27:17: "As iron sharpens iron, so one man sharpens another." God says that we need other people in our lives, in relationships that pay attention to how our heart is.

When we think of the analogy of iron sharpening iron, what comes to mind about this kind of relationship? It does not happen by accident – it is a deliberate act! If you want to be sharp, you have to be intentional about it. It takes a great deal of effort. If you want to stay sharp, be prepared to put in the work! It takes time - if you want to stay sharp, you will need to be patient. It is painful - if you want to stay sharp, brace yourself for the impact of change - it will hurt. It is worth it - there is value to staying sharp (just try to cut a nice piece of meat with a dull knife). And iron needs sharpening constantly - if you want to be sharp, never stop seeking to grow.

Ephesians 4:15 talks about speaking the truth in love. If you want to know how your heart is really doing, then you need some "iron sharpens iron" types of relationships, where truth is consistently spoken in a loving way.

How is your heart? And who is there in your life that can speak into that in an "iron sharpening iron" kind of way?

"They got to go to the air show and see everything up close and tour the restricted areas to see the CF-18s.

Those are some pretty unique things they get to do as part of that program," said Hoffman.

"In a month they go through a lot of stuff." Abdulkadir, 15, said those who took the survival course showed a lot of resilience.

The youth survived 48 hours on their own in a wooded area within the base and then an additional 24 hours on their own. "Everyone survived," he

The first duo, was actually a trio program as Abdulkadir joined a team so he and his partners survived for two days.

"For two days and two nights you'd go there and you'd be given a rubric of stuff that you would have to build, like a signal fire, collecting edibles like berries and we collected different things along with building a shelter and surviving for 48 hours," he said.

Jennifer Oakes, Sage Watson to help celebrate Women's History Month

Jennifer Oakes will return home with Paralympic bronze medal....

SANDRA M STANWAY BROOKS BULLETIN

Jennifer Oakes, who earned a bronze medal in sitting volleyball last week at the 2024 Paralympics Paris and Medicine in Hat Olympic hurdler Sage Watson will be the keynote speakers at a Women's History Month celebration on Oct. 19 at the JBS Centre.

The city and Girls Who Lead have partnered to present a program that is geared towards women and girls six-years-old and older.

All participants under the age of 12 must have a caregiver present.

Oakes and Watson will share their stories with a focus on the importance of role models, resilience and keeping women and girls in movement and sport.

Oakes, 26, just completed her third Paralympics where she has competed as a member of Canada's sitting volleyball team since 2015, the year she lost her leg below the knee in a boating accident at Lake Newell.

Instead of looking back and feeling sorry for herself, Oakes focused on her future while she was in her hospital bed.

She learned about sitting volleyball by a couple of former team members and as an elite standing volleyball player, it was natural that she made the move.

She worked hard over the next year and found herself as a member of Team Canada for the 2016 Rio Paralympics where the team finished in seventh.

Her second Paralympics was the 2020 event in Tokyo (held in 2021) and Team Canada earned fourth place.

This year Team Canada defeated Brazil 25-15, 25-18 and 25-18, to earn the bronze medal in sitting volleyball.

Sharing the stage with Oakes will be Sage Watson, 30, of Medicine Hat who broke the 55-second mark in the 400m hurdles in May 2016 while recording a personal best time of 54.82 seconds.

Three years later, Rio and advanced to the semifinals in the 400m hurdles. She anchored Canada to a fourth-place finish in the 4x400m relay.

She repeated those results in her second Olympic appearance in Tokyo 2020 but the 4x400m relay team missed the podium by just six-tenths of a second.

Junior Pan In the American Championships in 2013 Watson earned a gold in the 400m hurdles, silver in the 4x400m relay and bronze in the 400m.

Watson has received a number of awards including in 2016 when she was named a second team All-American at the NCAA Outdoor Championships having finished 12th in the 400m hurdles.

In 2017, Watson won the gold in 400m hurdles at the NCAA National Championships, lowering her personal best time to 54.52 seconds.

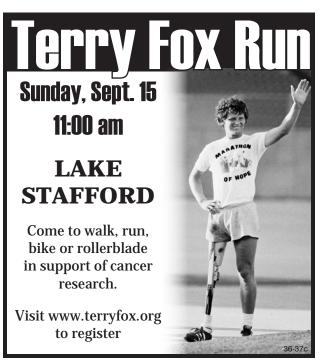

At the 2019 Pan Am Games in Lima, Watson won the gold medal in the 400m hurdles and added a silver in the 4x400m relay.

The Girls Who Lead coaches as well as Watson andSagewillbeatmovement and activity stations during the day to give everyone the opportunity to meet the athletes.

The event will be start at 1 p.m.

Registration and tickets are to be purchased ahead of the event. Male caregivers are welcome to attend with their girls.

Participants are to wear clean, dry running shoes and to bring a water bottle.

Bandits 2-0 in exhibition play

SANDRA M STANWAY BROOKS BULLETIN

Many new players have joined the old guard on the BCHL Brooks Bandits roster and the results in their first two matches are stunning.

The 30 member team includes four goalies and some rookie team players including Travis Verbeek, who last year was a member of the AJHL Whitecourt Wolverines. In 2022-23 he played a pair of games for the Bandits before he was acquired in a trade by the Drayton Valley Thunder.

In the first exhibition match on Friday, Nathan Free's hat trick gave the Bandits a 3-1 victory over the Sherwood Park Crusaders in Sherwood Park.

In his first game with the Bandits 2024 NHL Draft goalie Mikus Vecvanags 21 saves. The made 18-year-old was drafted by the Montreal Canadiens in round 5 at number 134

Prior to Saturday's home game there was a moment of silence in memory of NHL player Johnny Gaudreau, 31, and his 29-year-old brother Matthew who were killed by a suspected drunk driver on Aug. 29 while riding their bicycles in New Jersey the day before their sister's wedding.

In their first exhibition match at home the Bandits pummeled the Spruce Grove Saints 10-2.

Veteran goalie Johnny Hicks and rookie goalie Noah Tegelaar split the net minding responsibilities at home.

The Saints opened the scoring with a shorthanded goal in the first period and scored their final goal in the second period.

The Bandits took over the scoreboard with eight goals in the second period and two in the third.

Goalscorers for the Michal Bandits were Liśćinsky with two and Jack

Good, Evan Malkhassian, Verbeek, Travis Quinn McCall, Ty Gordon, Liam Fitzpatrick, Nick Peluso and newly minted captain Ethan Beyer each with one.

City claims misunderstanding in telling soccer to find land

SANDRA M STANWAY BROOKS BULLETIN

Following a report in last week's Bulletin that the city suggested to representatives Grasslands Soccer Association to find private land for a new soccer centre, a second email was sent stating that there was a misunderstanding. At the Aug. 27 city council committee meeting soccer reps Maria Jackson and Brad Biette explained that soccer needs a home and urged the city to find appropriate land that could be developed as a soccer area.

acre rodeo The 23 grounds seems to have been the perfect location with the neighbouring golf course, large enough for expansion and close enough to walk to.

The association presented council with four options - next to the French school, adjacent to the quad ball diamonds, Uplands and their preference, the old rodeo grounds.

They told council that the Uplands option, which includes private land, wouldn't work.

The morning following e presentation the the association received an email from the city suggesting they look at private land (Uplands option).

"At this time, council committee wishes for the association to reach out to MCF Holdings Ltd. to inquire if the landowner would be interested in donating land to the association (or city) for future development of the soccer fields related to option 4: Uplands," states tĥe email.

In an Aug. 29 email to the soccer association, city CAO Chris Parker apologized for the misunderstanding.

"Council has directed staff to come back with an options report in September but also wanted to see if your organization could or have reached out to MFC Holdings Ltd in order to see if Option 4 would be a viable for our report, hence, the reason for the original email

"At no time did we want to convey the impression that a decision had been made by council which unfortunately was how your organization did seem to understand the original email," he wrote.

He added that the city has limited taxpayer funds.

'(W)hen council is making financial decisions on its operations sometimes they have to be flexible and use some creative methods to achieve the goals of the city and private organizations. The request to your organization was one way for us to limit the financial burden on the general taxpayer and to try and accommodate your request.

"The city has some competing goals with the use of city-owned land that we currently own that your organization is not aware of, and we are not able to share at this time."

Maria Jackson of the association urged Parker to provide her with a name of an individual who knows what the long term plans are for the city and the availability of irrigation and how maintenance can be budgeted so a plan can be developed.

HOW DO YOU FEEL ABOUT YOUR PROVINCE SPENDING THE LEAST PER STUDENT ON PUBLIC EDUCTION IN ALL OF CANADA?

As proud citizens of this province, we cannot stand by while Alberta's governmental policies continue to neglect education. Schools are in urgent need to your help. Now is the time to take action.

Alberta continues to spend the least on public education per student compared to any other province in Canada. This neglect has left our schools and students in dire need of support, creating a crisis in Alberta's public education system. The latest report from the Fraser Institute in late 2023 starkly highlights that Alberta's education spending is the lowest in the nation.

Insufficient funding for public education leads to unmet student needs, overcrowded classrooms, the elimination of diverse programs, and decreased support for students with complex issues. These compounded problems have driven many dedicated teachers to leave their

Senior defrauded

Police are urging residents to speak with seniors about scammers.

Police said the daughter of a local woman informed them that her mother had been sending $10,000 per month overseas for a year to an unknown recipient.

People should be aware of anyone seeking personal information via text, email or phone.

"Brooks RCMP urges you to talk with the elderly in your life regarding the risk of sending money to unknown individuals without verifying their identity in person.

"This is known to happen a lot with online dating apps. No legitimate government entity requests payment via gift cards. If any business is requesting payment over the phone, it is important that we let seniors know to hang up and call the company back directly."

Anyone who receives a communication where someone is seeking any kind of personal information such as your full name, birth date or banking or tells you to download an app on your phone or computer should immediately disconnect.

Scammers can distribute malicious apps by a direct download line to a scam app via email or text. They can pretend to be your bank or credit card companies.

Roadrunners football open season with decisive win

Game two Sept. 12 in Med. Hat...

SANDRA M STANWAY BROOKS BULLETIN

Brooks Roadrunners Jamal Yuye had three touchdowns to help lift his team to a 42-7 win over the Medicine Hat Colts on Thursday.

Braze Shpak, Rhett Prins and Ben Langley all had one touchdown.

"The team came out strong. They scored in the opening but it was called back on a holding penalty," said head coach Mark Freeman.

The team shook it off and got their first touchdown of the game on the second kick.

"It's good to get that win under their belt," said Freeman adding that the team, which has only been practicing for about two and a half weeks, looked impressive on the field.

"There's lots of work to do but it's a good start with a dominant win." Freeman said there is a small group of players who know offence so expanding that knowledge to the rest of the team will be a focus of practice.

The Roadrunners finished second overall for the past two years in the four-team Rangeland Football Conference.

The team's next match is Thursday against last season's champion, Medicine Hat Vikings.

All Roadrunner games are out of town this season.

established butterfat standards and services. inspection The goal was to have the creameries produce high-quality a safe, product that was consistent and easily transported. In fact, that program was so successful that butter produced by Alberta creameries found its way into markets across western Canada, parts of the US and was even exported to Japan. The dairy producers and citizens in and around Markerville were so appreciative of that government help that they changed the name of their village from Tindastoll to Markerville, the name of the Superintendent Government of Creameries, Dr. Christian Marker. His involvement in developing creameries was one of those economic life-altering situations that improved the lives of thousands of rural folks trying to eke out a living on small farms throughout the province.

One is reminded how another Alberta government foresightful decision created our giant feedlot industry – I cite the Feeders Associations of Alberta, highly successful а cattle feeder loan financing program backed by the provincial government. It started in 1938 to provide loan guarantees to producers to finish feeding their cattle in Alberta. It continues to this day, providing loan guarantees for millions of dollars and sophisticated risk management services to around 20% of the feeder cattle business. I would suggest that the experience and support from that program laid the groundwork for the massive expansion of the big Alberta feedlot business in the 1960s to its present multi-billion dollar size. One wonders who the key government planners were back then who instrumental were developing in that industry. expect some of those same government folks were part of the process that saw the two giant meat packers get established in Alberta. The cattle industry is indebted to those early visionary bureaucrats. But I digress.

The Markerville Creamery took steps to improve their efficiency and butter product. They required their shippers to acquire onfarm separators so that only cream was shipped to the plant. That reduced transportation That costs and logistics and left the separated skim milk for home use or to be fed to calves and hogs for additional farm income. The creamery also rigorously tested for butterfat levels, which affected the producers' cream cheques. The higher the butterfat level, the higher the price. Butterfat can be increased by providing milk cows with better quality forages and grains high in protein. Cow genetics can also increase butterfat; the Jersey breed of dairy cattle is renowned for its high butterfat production. However, as purebreds, they were too delicate for the harsh conditions on most frontier farms, so tougher breeds like milking shorthorns were used. The latter is a dual-purpose breed that is now close to extinction in North America due to low milk production compared to the dominant Frisian dairy breed (called Holsteins only in North America). Unlike the good old days, dairy COWS nowadays don't have to jump over logs, get stuck in swamps and mud, dodge predators, brush eat during droughts, and consume mouldy hay during cold winters outside. It's amazing that they produced any surplus milk, considering the hardships. More next time.

Old rodeo ground rezoning gets first reading by city council

Public hearing Sept. 16 5 p.m...

SANDRA M STANWAY BROOKS BULLETIN

Councillor Marissa Wardrop voted against the first reading to rezone the old rodeo grounds and she and councillor Mohammed Idriss opposed the motion to officially designate the grounds as a school property.

Members of the public can speak to the rezoning bylaw at 5 p.m. on Sept. 16 or a written submission can be made. If the rezoning bylaw is given the final two readings, not only will the old rodeo grounds convert from a park to a public and quasipublic service district for a new Catholic high school. It is likely the city will hold a second vote to officially designate the land for a school.

When the land is designated a joint use agreement with the school board will be drawn up to ensure the land returns to the city at the end of the school's use.

In early July city council hastily approved a motion to designate about 23.5 acres for the school.

The city didn't announce that they had given the entire property to the school board until mid-July.

The city is responsible to provide land for a school and the mayor has previously stated the city doesn't want to purchase land - for about $3 million - when there is land available.

In 2023 the city budgeted $1.5 million of the $3 million project to redevelop the rodeo grounds as a recreation site.

The city has been considering what to do with the property since the Kinsmen Rodeo moved to Silver Sage over a decade ago.

Throughout the years residents have used the space as an informal park and a dog park.

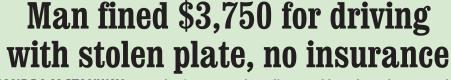

In 2020 the city issued a tender for mixed-use development on the site but there were no solid A year later 535 people responded to the city's rodeo grounds survey. At that time 43 per cent said no to commercial use and 76 per cent stated the site would be a good location for recreation and parks.

In September 2023, Binnie and Associates won a tender from the city to plan a park at the old rodeo grounds and in the city's 2021-2025 strategic plan, a future development is a sidewalk or path to the grounds as well as implementing a plan.

The city also noted in a future developments document to look for school locations before April 2023.

Aaron Travis Reid pleaded guilty for having a stolen licence plate on the vehicle he was driving and driving with no insurance and was fined $3,750.

The court was told that when Reid was stopped by a Brooks officer on Dec. 11, 2022, he was unable to provide insurance documents and said he had received the licence plate from an unknown individual.

After contacting the plate's owner the officer discovered it had been stolen from a vehicle that was stored in a commercial lot.

Reid was also given 30 days consecutive in custody after pleading guilty to three counts of failing to attend court and one count of failing to report to Brooks community corrections as part of his release order.

Reid had 21 days of pretrial custody and was released to the custody of his father and then to a rehab centre.

"You know, you're very blessed. You have your dad sitting here looking very stressed. If you love your dad as he obviously loves you, you really need to look in the mirror and grow up, unless you want to spend more time in jail," Justice Grace Auger told Reid.

Five additional charges were withdrawn but he is scheduled to return to court this month for three additional charges including break and enter with intent, two counts of mischief under $5,000 and one count of theft over $5,000.

Man gets three months in custody, with 21 days left

SANDRA M STANWAY BROOKS BULLETIN

Ronald Keith Thordarson, 49, was fined $500 after he pleaded guilty to two counts of failing to attend court and he was sentenced to three months in custody, but served 21 days, following his guilty plea to being unlawfully in a home.

The court was told that on July 13 at about 11 p.m. a "heavily intoxicated" Thordarson kicked in a door on a home in the Ingram Park area as he was looking for the owner. When he was told by the housesitter, who later identified him, that the owner wasn't home he left. Police located him at his home the following evening. Thordarson's lawyer, Marc Crarer, told the court that his client is very remorseful.

"He came into residence and left very quickly," he said.

While Crarer sought time served or a three month sentence with 12 months of probation, the Crown had sought a six to nine month period of custody.

The justice agreed with both but seeing that the break and enter was at the lower end and having learned that Thordarson is seeking rehabilitation to reunite with his family, she agreed to the three month sentence with credit for 69 days. She also put him on 12 months of probation with a curfew for six months of 10 p.m. to 6 a.m.

"You are blessed. Your mom is here. She wants you to be OK," said Justice Grace Auger.

County approves $22,500 for three months of SAEV

SANDRA M STANWAY BROOKS BULLETIN

The county has agreed to provide three months worth of funds to the Southern Alberta Energy from Waste Association (SAEWA).

The county came out of an in-camera meeting with Ray Juska, chairman of SAEWA, and agreed to provide temporary financial relief.

"For the next thee months, $7,500 per month will be provided while they work towards a funding grant," states the county.

Following the meeting Juska told The Bulletin the funds are for operating expenses which is largely staff and administration.

"We've gone through the process of looking alternatives. There have been three sets of interviews with each of the three potential partners and now we are just assessing the interviews to present the conclusions to the board at the beginning of October," he said. Juska said the SAEWA board expects to have direction on the future of the project at that time.

"Where go from there depends on the board."

The board may end the project or decide to move forward based on affordability and if they are worth pursuing.

"We couldn't afford to spend the time and money in these negotiations as was done with Hitachi Zosen Inova (HZI)."

BOW CITY - I honestly want to say sorry that I've missed the last couple weeks got a little bit to catch up on bear with me

Got a happy birthday going out to Ernie Mathieu on September 16.

It was a very busy long weekend around.

The Calvert reunion was held down at the park on the long weekend. I hear it was a blast and they had 50 some people. They figured out this was the 39th year of having a September long weekend family gathering. It's always nice to see them all get together to use our park.

Joyce and Jerry , Dan and I enjoyed. Patricia rodeo as always Brad and Carrie joined us and it was a great weekend. Brad's son and girlfriend Kelsey joined us Saturday we all came home on Sunday.

And let me tell you those darn wasps were nasty got stung three times but they don't care.

I want to put a big thanks out there for the Bow City fire department and Brooks EMS for helping us out you guys are the best thank you.

So loving and supporting Patricia rodeo as we had quite a few people camping there and participating I wanna say it was so nice to be there and supporting our little community. Way to go Brody and Sylver, and also Colter in roping. It's so good that we had so many from Bow City. Gotta love it.

Brad and Vickie had Bree, Amara and Bennett down for the family reunion. Marc is down helping out in the farm as well.

Curtis ended up in the hospital but you can't keep him out of the field - he's got lots of help- even a buddy seat partner to keep an eye on him. Thank goodness for that and speedy recovery is wished for him.

Vickie and her sister were in Manitoba for a quick sister visit with their cousins. Back in time to do some field meals for the harvest season. Farming is such a good life when everyone works together.

Brad and Carrie had their good friends Vince and Christine from Okotoks come and visit on Sunday. Was a surprise for Brad so Carey was happy she could do that. As that goes I also want to say thank you to Carrie for being my big time support well-being in Calgary thank you Carrie.

Have a great week all and remember life is short and sweet let's make it the best Road painting and vehicle safety features discussed

SANDRA M STANWAY BROOKS BULLETIN

For about the past decade vehicles sold in Canada have included line assist, a feature to keep drivers within their lane when driving at a speed of at least 70 km per hour.

The feature also means vehicle sensors and cameras must be able to see brighter, clearer lines.

At about the same time the feature started to be introduced, the province and the county began to paint one side of the road per year.

Last week Mark Harbicht, the county's director of municipal services, asked council to think about having both sides of the road painted which would increase the budget.

"We're going to have to start to feel you out to see if you want us to paint all of the lines again which would be adding another 33 per cent to the budget or whether we stick to what we've been doing," he said. "It's an observation of operations."

Harbicht explained that if lines are not painted each year they become faded and sometimes there are no lines for the painter truck to follow.

He said the new vehicles are looking to sense the lanes and it's something the council and staff may want to be aware of for upkeep of the systems.

McSAVANEY - Karen Ann McSavaney passed away on September 6, 2024 in the arms of her loving husband, Vince, in Brooks, Alberta. She battled her lengthy cancer journey with such strength and grace. She never complained and was always optimistic, offering a smile to anyone who walked into the room. Karen often talked about all her fond memories of growing up in Gardiner Mines, Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia, with her brother Earl, sister Patsy as well as many cousins. She often made her way to Dominion, where she met the love of her life, Vince. One night, being the gentleman he is, he walked her home from Dominion to the Gardiner and the rest is history. They lived an amazing life together filled with never ending love. Together, they were amazing role models of what the true meaning of love and family are to their 5 children. Karen pursued an education in cosmetology. After working many years in the profession, she made the decision to work from home, providing her services to many of her family and friends throughout the town. She devoted her Saturday's to the seniors of Dominion for free hair services. After raising her children, she re-entered the workforce as a personal homecare provider for many years before moving to Alberta, where she joined the team at Newbrook Lodge. After 15 years at the lodge, Karen sadly became ill, forcing her to retire. Being as optimistic as she was, Karen always said she would return after her treatments. The love Karen had for her family and friends was beyond measurable. The joy she found in time spent with them left her happy and content in life. Karen had many loves and interests such as swimming, her and her bff's were the OG's (original gangsters) of Dominion beach. Other passions that gave her much peace include gardening, reading, puzzles, painting and driving the trap line with Vin. Sadly, Karen was predeceased by her father Freddie Gouthro, mother Anna Gouthro (MacIntosh), brother Earl Gouthro, special aunt Erma MacIntosh, father-in-law, John McSavaney, mother-in-law Mable McSavaney (Burke) and brother-in-law Harold McSavaney. She will be forever missed by her husband Vince, sons, Terry (April), Kerr, Todd (Wendy), John Paul and daughter, Lisa (Jeffrey); grandchildren, Kayy, Cassandra (Zack), Holly (Matt), Brianna (Nick), Adrianna (Austin), Ryan, Marissa (Carson), Landon, Burke, Kaden, Noah and honorary grandson, Scott; great grandchildren, Ellie, Nolan, Payton and Sophia; sister Patsy (Wayne); brothers-in-law, Wayne, Brian (Lisa) and Bernie (Anne); nieces and nephews, Jody, Jeffery, Jennifer, Brad, Brent, Earl, Tracey and Dale and many cousins and friends. The family would like to thank the medical staff of both the acute care and the long-term care teams at the Brooks Health Centre, the palliative care and homecare teams as well as the staff of the Brooks Shoppers Drug Mart Pharmacy. We would like to give a special thank you to Karen's brother-in-law Wayne McSavaney for all his help and support at home and at the hospital. The family would also like to thank Colleen for all her help and support she provided for Karen and our family. A private family service will be held.

ONE TREE - I hope everyone enjoyed a great Labour Day weekend before all the kids had to go back to school. I guess some had already had started week prior.

A week ago Wednesday Judy Merkl and her mother Betty Hok of Newbrook Lodge went to Youngstown to attend the funeral of a family friend, Mariel Slutton of Cereal. There was a large attendance present, with many folks Betty and Judy hadn't seen for many years. It was nice for them to reconnect with old friends.

NOTE The Brooks and District Social Club will be holding their dance on Saturday, September 21st from 7:30 pm to 10:30 pm at the Old Legion Hall next to the Nikko Sushi Restaurant. Keep in mind the October Dance will be held on Saturday, October 26th with the band "Sleepless Nights" from Redcliff. So, folks mark you calendars.

Inga Ellefson and Erwin Unger went to Saskatoon on Saturday the 25th to help celebrate the 4th birthday of Erwin's great nephew, Benjamin Slominski. I'm sure he was excited.

The week of Monday the 26th Ozzie Schalm and daughter Sherraine and her daughters, Gaia and Allegra did some touring to Saskatchewan to the Grasslands National Park and then followed the Red Coat Trail west across to Writing on Stone Park east of Milk River. They arrived home on Friday. It's nice they could spend some time with her father, grandpa.

On the Labour Day weekend all of Ozzie's families-Sherry, Sherwin, Michelle, Jonene and Sherraine and her girls were home for the weekend.

On Tuesday Sherraine and her daughters left to go back to Italy so the girls could get back to school. They stopped in for a quick visit at my home, which I appreciated very much. It was great to see them again.

Child prodigy

Pablo Picasso was born in the Mediterranean seaport of Malaga, Spain, on Oct. 25, 1881. Picasso's father was an artist and teacher who encouraged and mentored his son's natural talents. It has been said that from age 7, Picasso was never seen without a pencil in hand.

Early days

When Picasso turned 10 years old, the family moved to the seaport town of La Coruña, where he studied at the Guarda School of Fine Arts.

When Picasso was 14, the family moved to Barcelona, and the artist entered the Llotja School of Fine Arts.

Picasso set out on his own in 1899, at the age of 18. He moved to his own place in Barcelona, where he became involved with a community of avant-garde artists, writers and poets. During this time, he did illustrations for several magazines and exhibited his drawings at the cabaret Els One of the most important artists of the 20th century and a father of modern art, Pablo Picasso was a prolific painter, printmaker and sculptor who influenced generations of artists.

The Blue Period

The time between 1901 and 1904 is called Picasso's Blue Period. Blue tones, reflecting isolation and melancholy, dominate his work, and his subject matter contemplates poverty and despair. The mood of these works may have been a response to the suicide of his close friend Casagemas in 1901. In 1904, he moved from Madrid to Paris.

The Rose Period

The time between 1904 and 1906 is known as Picasso's Rose Period. He returns to a more romantic style and begins to use warmer colors (often pink). He often depicts themes of strolling players, harlequins and circus performers.

At the turn of the century, Paris was considered to be the art capital of Europe. In 1900, Picasso and his friend and fellow artist Carlos Casagemas made the pilgrimage there. Picasso's work at this time clearly shows the influence of the Impressionistic art movement. After a second visit to Paris in 1901, Picasso stopped using his father's surname, Ruiz, and began using his mother's name — Picasso — because it was more unusual.

As famous for his love affairs as he was for his art, Picasso is also said to have been a notorious matchmaker.

Early cubism

Young artists are often taught how to draw using basic shapes as a foundation. Picasso and fellow artist Georges Braque explored and expanded the use of basic shapes in their art. In 1908, artist Henri Matisse accused Braque of creating "a landscape of cubes." Art critic Louis Vauxcelles called these landscapes "cubical oddities" — and the cubism movement was born.

Cubists rejected traditional reality, storytelling and emotion in an effort to focus on form in its purest sense. Picasso's fame as a cubist can be attributed to his radical level of abstraction.

Cubism basics

Cubism was the first abstract style of modern art. The cubist movement is often divided into two phases. The Analytic style (1907 to 1912) is distinguished by its monochromatic colors and geometrical shapes. The Synthetic phase (1913 into the 1920s) is known for its exploration of color and mixed media. Collage merged with painting during this phase.

After cubism

In 1917, Picasso designed the curtain, set and costumes for the touring Russian Ballet's "Parade."

In the 1920s and 1930s, he continued his printmaking, sculpture and ceramic work.

The Black Period

Picasso's Black Period refers to the years 1906 and 1907, in which Picasso falls under the influence of African art.

Wounded Bird, 1921, private collection

Picasso believed that ceramics should be considered part of the fine arts. Between 1946 and 1973, he modeled, shaped, designed, decorated, engraved and carved more than 3,500 fired clay objects

In the end

In 1970, Picasso donated more than 900 works to the Picasso Museum in Barcelona. In 1971, the Louvre installed eight of Picasso's paintings — the first time this museum displayed the works of a living artist.

Picasso died in 1973 at the age of 91. During his lifetime, he produced about 13,500 paintings or designs, 100,000 prints or engravings, 34,000 book illustrations, 300 sculptures and 3,500 ceramics.
